Example Policies:

Some ideas to get you started on writing your own policies.

What are the example policies for?

Every organisation needs a collection of Policies & Procedures to guide its day-to-day activities & governance. And these days most grant-giving bodies require charities and community groups to be able to produce any number of policies before they will donate any money.

Starting with a blank sheet of paper and "reinventing the wheel" can be a lengthy and tedious process. So it is hoped that this collection of example policies - most of which have themselves been modified from the policies of others - will simplify the process a little by providing some ideas to get you going.

But will they be right for my charity or group?

Every organisation is, of course, different. So these examples are unlikely to be exactly what you require for your situation. You will therefore need to adapt them to suit your own particular needs and situation. In some cases the required modifications may be quite trivial. In other cases (particularly for compliance with GDPR) pretty much the whole document will require re-writing.

But, hopefully, they will help you over those most difficult of initial hurdles :

"Where do I start?" & "What do I need to include?"

So how do I start?

The examples are all downloadable as either PDF files or as editable MS-Word^(R) documents.

On the website, simply click on the relevant icons ( for PDFs,  for Docs) next to the titles that you are interested in. You can then adapt them as necessary to fit your own particular situation.

If you have any comments/suggestions (and, particularly, criticisms) that would make these example policies more useful to others we would be delighted to hear from you at enquiries@smallcharitysupport.uk
